Overseas dating success!

After dating over 1,000 men, and launching her own dating website for singletons searching for overseas love, Essex born dating expert Rochelle Peachey tells In2 about her climb to success..

by MICHELLE NORRIS

THE world of dating, can sometimes feel like a very daunting and confusing place to be. With so many different dating avenues to explore, whether it be blind, speed and even online - sometimes we just need that little bit of guidance to give us that gentle push in the right direction.

And that's exactly what dating expert Rochelle Peachey is here for. Originally from Essex, Rochelle has been handing out her top tips for 12 years! And after dating over 1,000 blokes - all in the aid of research - Rochelle has moved to Orlando and is the successful author of two dating books and the founder of a brand new dating website: iloveyouraccent.com, which has already resulted in two marriages, an engagement and a pregnancy. Not bad for a website that was only launched on Valentine's Day this year!

"When I started out, I was actually just trying to set a friend up on a blind date with an ad in the personal section of a local Newspaper," Rochelle tells me. "Then, when she got 700 replies, I became really interested in how what someone puts in a personal ad can reflect the type of people who respond."

This intrigue led Rochelle into writing her first book Eat Your Lonely Heart Out under the pen name Rochelle Morton - but she wanted to know more.

Exploring the theory that we are attracted to people with different accents to their own, Rochelle travelled overseas to America for her second book 'My 1,000 Americans: A Year-Long Odyssey Through the Personals', which involved her placing her own information in a personal ad and dating whoever responded.

"The purpose behind the dates was to discover who answers personal ads and why, when all they can hear is the person's voice down the phone," explains Rochelle. "So, I made my personal ad really general, to get as many replies as possible. And I got a real variety!"

■ Life's Peachey: Rochelle's new dating website has already resulted in two weddings, an engagement and a pregnancy!

"There were single men, married men, men who were generally lonely and of course some lunatics!" she laughs. "There were men, who were just coming along to have an affair and then there were men that treated me like an unpaid therapist!"

"So, I guess that 'My 1,000 Americans' really does give me the right to call myself an expert!" she laughs. "It was really crazy and it was obvious that most of the men were only meeting me purely because of my accent."

After Rochelle's discovery, she realised that there was a gap in the online market for people looking for love overseas and so created iloveyouraccent.com.

"I've been thinking about getting on the web for a couple of years now, especially because I know how much American's love the English accent," she says. "My site is for people that aren't just looking to hook up with someone - it's for people that want something more and it's quite life changing really. And I'm always there to help people write their profiles and give them real advice on how to get back into the dating pool. Even if they're not looking for love, they can still make great contacts on the site."

Indeed, Rochelle is with her clients every step of the way and prides herself on her 'no-nonsense approach' to dating.

"I'm very to the point," she admits. "So many people sugar coat things but I tell it as it is."

"But I think that the internet is great as it makes it much easier for people to get to know someone before they actually meet them. You can email and IM back and forth and really connect and I think that's why my site has been such a success. It's finally made it possible for people to contact others from across the Atlantic, which no other site has ever done before."

If you're interested in making contact with someone with a different accent, check out iloveyouraccent.com and see if you can meet someone that you can really connect with - you might even find your soul mate!
